High-speed internet to break down barriers for those in the Kenora District

The Kenora District Services Board (KDSB) has received funding from the Federal Government of Canada to provide high-speed internet within the Kenora District to those with limited or inadequate access to reliable, high-quality internet.

On Wednesday, June 23, 2021, the announcement was made by the Honourable Minister Maryam Monsef, Minister for Women and Gender Equality and Rural Economic Development, alongside the Honourable Marc Miller, Minister of Indigenous Services, and the Honourable Carolyn Bennett, Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations. The KDSB will be the recipient of $4,981,320 to allow individuals in need to access and participate in digital opportunities that go far beyond the geographical borders of the District. It is crucial to note that recipients of high-speed internet through this project must either have no access to the internet currently or access to poor, low-quality internet services.

“There are two issues residents in our District face when it pertains to high-speed internet: lack of affordable infrastructure and lack of access, which makes the digital divide real, leading to lower economic development, lower job creation, and overall decreased secondary and post-secondary graduation rates,” says Barry Baltessen, Board Chair of the KDSB. He continues, “The KDSB, in partnership with local organizations and First Nation communities across the region, have a lot to accomplish over the next nine months. Our goal is to provide digital equity to as many people as possible, which will allow them to stay connected and thrive.”

KDSB will be partnering with FSET Information Technology out of Kenora, ON, to execute this meaningful project for the region over the next nine months. The project will roll out through a community/region approach within the District.

Community members who have a permanent residence (rent or own) within the Kenora District who are interested in learning more about the eligibility criteria and receiving future communications regarding the project are encouraged to sign up for mail or email communication at kdsb.on.ca or fill out a paper form at one of KDSB’s administration office locations to stay informed as the program is implemented.
